ABOUT

About Alisha L. Jacobsen

Bringing Accessibility, Knowledge, and Compassion to Each Client

For Alisha L. Jacobsen, the law is only one part of the equation. It’s how the law affects her clients that is the basis of her practice. Her passion for helping others, depth of knowledge, and strong communication skills ensure that each of her clients receives personal and professional attention. She is experienced working with a wide variety of cultures and age groups, guiding clients through what are often complex or emotionally charged times in their lives.

Alisha earned her J.D. in 2010 at the University of Maryland School of Law, her M.A.T. from the School for International Training and her B.A. from the University of Iowa. She is licensed to practice law in Maryland and in the District of Columbia.

Alisha represents clients in estate planning and probate administration. Her office is in downtown Rockville, Maryland.

Prior to practicing law, Alisha taught French, English, Latin, and multicultural education to adults and children both in West Africa and the U.S. In her spare time, Alisha enjoys bicycling, hiking, traveling, playing with her new rescue dog as well as spending time with friends and family. Her husband Gérémie Sawadogo, retired from the World Bank. They have two adult children; their daughter who is a lawyer in DC. Their son works in private equity.